OUTLOOK:

 A FIRE WEATHER WATCH IS IN EFFECT OVER MONTANA FOR INCREASING WINDS, LOW HUMIDITIES AND DRY LIGHTNING. ***

High pressure aloft continues to dominate the weather across the western part of the country. Monsoon moisture will continue to move north out of the southwestern United States. An upper level trough and low pressure system along the west coast will keep the interior Pacific Northwest, California valleys and much of the Great Basin dry and very warm.

Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Montana, Wyoming, and Idaho will have isolated to scattered afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms. This activity will be prevalent over the mountains. Utah and Arizona may experience heavy rain with the thunderstorms.

Portions of Montana, Nevada, eastern Oregon, Wyoming and western Idaho may experience isolated dry thunderstorms today.

The rest of the western states will be dry with mostly sunny skies, except for continued morning low clouds and fog along the California, Washington and Oregon coasts. High temperatures will be in the 80's to near 100 in most locations, with 60's and 70's in the mountains. Temperatures in the southern deserts will be in the 90's to 110.

Eastern Oregon, eastern Washington, western Idaho, and Nevada will see relative humidities drop to near 10 percent in the afternoon.
