OUTLOOK:

In the Southern Area, weather will remain mostly cool and dry except for a band of rain showers across central and south Florida, associated with a stalled cold front through Sunday. From Sunday to Monday another cold front will bring sub-freezing winter weather back to the Deep South along with gusty northerly surface winds at 15 to 20 mph. High temperatures in the north will be in the 20s and 40s to mid 50s in the Deep South with low minimum relative humidities through Wednesday. A new storm front will develop over the Mississippi Valley on Thursday and could bring a significant widespread rain event to portions of the Southern Area.
