Cumulative acres showing in the Active Incident Resource Summary Table may not be reflected in the YTD statistics due to a lag in units completing YTD adjustments in the SIT/209 Application. Otherwise, changes in agency YTD fires and acres reflect more accurate mapping or reporting adjustments.

Predictive Services Discussion:

Widespread southwest winds of 20-40 mph with gusts 45-65 mph will develop across the Great Basin, Southwest, and West Slope today, with the strongest winds along the east slopes of the southern Sierra into southern Nevada. Minimum relative humidity will fall to 15-25% in the northern central Great Basin, and 5-20% for the West Slope and Southwest, with elevated to locally critical conditions most likely in New Mexico where fuels are driest. Widespread valley rain and mountain snow is expected across the northern half of the West, roughly north of US-50, and mixed precipitation will move into the northern Plains tonight. A strong cold front will move from the Appalachians this morning to off the East Coast tonight, with widespread showers and thunderstorms, with severe thunderstorms expected from the Mid-Atlantic to the northeast Gulf Coast. Drier conditions are expected across the southern Plains, with very low relative humidity less than 15% west of the dryline in the High Plains. Near to above normal temperatures will continue across Alaska, with light snow expected across the central and eastern Interior. Low pressure west of Hawai'i will bring southerly winds to the state, along with increased showers, most numerous for the western islands.
