Wednesday, October 8, 2025 – 0730 MDT
National Preparedness Level 2

National Fire Activity:

Fire Activity and Teams Assigned	Totals
Initial attack activity:	Light (56 fires)
New large incidents:	0

Nationally, there are zero fires being managed under a strategy other than full suppression.

Fires not managed under a full suppression strategy or fires managed under a full suppression strategy but utilizing a combination of tactics – such as monitoring, confinement or point zone protection – achieve specific fire management objectives while balancing the most effective utilization of resources. Fires managed as described above are identified in the situational report as Comp fires. Additional information including definitions can be found in the NWCG glossary or here.

Predictive Services Discussion:

A cold front will move off the East Coast today with scattered showers along the coastal plain that will end this morning. Breezy northwest winds will develop behind the front across the Northeast, but relative humidity will remain elevated. Dry conditions with areas of minimum relative humidity as low as 20% will persist in the Mid and Upper Mississippi Valley, but winds will be light overall. Scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms will develop across New Mexico and southeast Arizona, while much of the rest of the West is dry. Temperatures will warm to above normal across much of the Intermountain West. A strong storm will affect western Alaska today with widespread precipitation and breezy south winds. Strong southwesterly winds will continue across much of Alaska, but precipitation will be lighter than what was observed yesterday. Afternoon sea breezes will develop across Hawai'i this afternoon with scattered showers.
